

SPACE REBEL PRINCESS

A new interactive show for children and families

Booking Now: Telephone: 01642 824 466 | Jennifer@jenniferessex.com

A fearless young princess raised for royalty but not for rocketry, dreams of becoming an astronaut.

FROM HERE TO THE STARS!

Outsmarting the confines of her palace upbringing, and with the help of the audience, the princess must break free of the fear that holds her back, and boldly go where no princess has gone before!

YOUR REBEL PRINCESS NEEDS YOU!

- Suitable for audiences 4+ and families
- Collaborative with audience participation:
 - Decipher alien messages
 - Assemble a giant rocket
 - Float with the princess in zero-gravity
 - Save the world!

Children get involved, helping the princess to achieve her mission as constructs her first ever rocketship in a land where reading and writing has been outlawed...

Inspired by Helen Sharman, the first person from the UK to travel into space, Rebel Space Princess seeks to empower young people, to inspire in them a life-long love of stories, and to encourage them to chase their dreams.

This is a small-scale work focuses on innovative audience engagement and adventure. Space Rebel Princess will combine clowning, physical theatre, dance, craft and poetry to create a piece of joyful, genre-breaking performance.

Runtime: Approximately 25 minutes
Suitable for indoor and outdoor spaces

MEET OUR TEAM OF BRAVE PIONEERS!

Jennifer Essex, Choreographer and Contemporary Dancer

Jennifer has been a creative practitioner with Eastside Educational Trust where she worked with young people in schools across London. Her projects for young people have included working with Creative People and Places on flashmobs to animate town centres across Spalding and South Holland and with French company, Beauville Arts, on their build a musical in a week programmes.

Jennifer has also performed in feature films including Anna Karenina and Les Miserables and worked with world-renown choreographers including Sidi Larbi Cherkaoui, Liam Steel, and Luca Silvestrini.

She performs with Liverpool based physical theatre company Tmesis and is a Senior Lecturer at Teesside University.

“Alongside her bold theatrical language [Jennifer Essex] has a real and rare eye for detail and subtleties.”

- Kim Brandstrup, award-winning choreographer

Harry Man, Writer

Harry was a 2016 Clarissa Luard Wordsworth Trust Poet in Residence. He is also a 2016 Hawthornden Fellow and a 2016 TOAST Poet. His most recent collection, Finders Keepers, was shortlisted for the Ted Hughes Award.

Harry has worked with the Emma Press on their national tour of 'Myths and Monsters' in schools, libraries and community centres. He has also taught in schools throughout Cumbria, Sussex and the South West.

“A very big thanks for organising our visit from Harry Man. The children really enjoyed the morning and produced some lovely poetry, inspired by Harry's presentation. He was great with the children and they responded really well to his approach, friendly and clearly passionate about his craft. A big success.”

- Teacher, Cumbria

"Space Rebel Princess is an interactive, playful and highly skilled physical performance for little ones and families. It's rare to see a children's show that has all of these combinations; storytelling, dance, participation, music and lots and lots of fun! This show would work indoors and outdoors and gives children an opportunity to engage in a thoroughly creative 30 minute show. A delight!"

- Claire Bigley, Creative Producer for Physical Fest and Tmesis Theatre

"Space Rebel Princess is a brilliant little show for children with a childlike playfulness at its heart. A great experience for those that took part and fabulously entertaining for those that watched. Genuinely playful genius"

- Adrian Turrell-Watts, Producer for Fittings Multimedia Arts
